"The Spirit" (The Greatest Chapter in the Bible, part 2) // Romans 8:12–17 // Romans #16

[coming out of prayer time]

- Thank you so much for praying for me and I hope you'll continue do that next week.
- Again, the impact you, TSC, is having on so many churches around the nation and the world has eternal and far-reaching value...
- Just so you know, after the SBC, my family and I are going to be spending a few weeks overseas encouraging some missionaries at a conference and then spending time with a few of our families...
  - It will be a little bit of a break for me, which will allow me a couple of things:
  - To cease being J.D. the stage guy and just do one-on-one EV
  - And it's great for my kids to see that... and relate to me not as Pastor or President but "just a guy who likes to tell other people about Jesus."
- While I'm gone you are going to be left in great hands the next four weekends w/b some of our teaching team (Derrick, Will, Ricky, Curtis) will be preaching a series called "Altered: Coming Face to Face with Jesus" on different encounters that people have with Jesus in Scripture. It's going to be great.

So that's what's coming, but for today, let's continue in Romans 8...the greatest chapter in the Bible...

• (If you have your Romans journal, we're on page 50.)

Works Consulted: "Witness of the Spirit," Tim Keller "Heirs of Everything," Scott Sauls "The Spirit of Adoption," Tony Merida "You Will Sit Next to the King," Erwin Lutzer "Chosen," Joby Martin This is a precious chapter.

• Believers in the worst conditions ever have found this chapter to be their lifeline, their hope.

That's how precious this chapter is.

Bible scholar N.T. Wright calls Romans 8 "a veritable feast of Pauline themes that carries the power of the gospel in every breath. He says, "If the church would hoist its sails and catch the wind of Romans 8, there's no telling what might happen."

• JS Bach composed a whole symphony based off of it.

Big challenge: (What if you memorized it this summer--many of our students are doing so)--the Romans 8 challenge.

Well, despite the fact that it is so beloved, there's some difference of opinion among Bible scholars, however, about what the theme of Romans 8 actually is.

Many say it's the Spirit, since the Holy Spirit gets mentioned 17x in this chapter.

Other scholars, however, contend that it's all about assurance. I mean, think about the many great verses in Romans 8 to that end:

- (vs. 1) "There is no condemnation"
- And, (vs. 16) The Spirit of God cries out in us "Abba, Father" assuring us that we are the children of God
- And, (vs. 35) we know that in Christ nothing can separate us from the love of God AND (vs. 28) that God is working all things together for good even when we can't see it or feel it.

• And many other verses about assurance<sup>1</sup>

So, which is it? Is Romans 8 about the Spirit, or is it about assurance?

Well, you'll get closest to the truth when you put the two together: Assurance in the Christian life comes from intimacy with the Spirit. The Spirit's primary role in your life is giving you assurance.

So the question to ask from Romans 8 is this: How exactly does the Spirit give us assurance? Because that's what Romans 8 is all about.

(Listen: This is going to be so helpful for you because it will answer so many questions about how you relate to the Spirit of God!)

This chapter is full of little phrases Christians sometimes repeat but are not quite sure what they mean.

For example, What does it mean that the Spirit intercedes for us in groanings that cannot be uttered? Is that like whale sounds he is taking in us?

Or, vs. 16, "The Spirit testifies together with our spirit that we are God's children." Christians wonder, "How exactly does the Spirit testify to us?

- Does that mean real Christians hear voice inside of them whispering, 'You really are a true Christian'?
  - Because... I've never heard that voice. For that matter, if there is a voice inside of me it usually seems to be whispering the opposite: "You're not really a Christian. You've never really been saved."
- Or, is Paul talking about a peaceful, easy feeling that you know just won't let you down that just comes over you in an instant...

- Because, that happens sometimes but more often than that it's unpeaceful, worried feelings that come over me that feel sure I'm being let down... and I'm pretty sure that's not a verse anyway but the lyrics from an Eagles song
- But how do you know the Spirit of God is inside of you, testifying to you? What does that feel like?
- I've told you about a guy I knew of back in college who directed a recording studio that gave time to start-up Christian artists. "That's the reverb, ma'am."
- What's it feel like?

The point is, it's easy to be confused, and so in the next seven verses of chapter 8 we're going to see (1) the necessity of the Spirit; (2) the trajectory of the Spirit; and (3) the assurance from the Spirit.

1. The Necessity of the Spirit

In verses 12–13 Paul explains that only in the Spirit can we escape the power of sin.

<sup>12</sup> So then, brothers and sisters, we are not obligated to the flesh to live according to the flesh,

- "So then" points back to the point Paul made with the first 11 verses, namely that there is "no condemnation" for those in Christ Jesus. He's saying, "Because Jesus put an end to sin through his death on the cross, we are no longer obligated to it."
- "not obligated" means "no longer bound" to it. We are no longer captive to obey its dictates.
- Through his death, Jesus released us from the penalty of sin, but Jesus also resurrected--and that life imparted to us by his Spirit releases us from the power of sin in our lives.
- Get that straight--his death releases you from the penalty of sin; his resurrection releases you from the power of sin.

• You are released from the penalty of sin by his blood; you are released by the power of sin by his Spirit.

<sup>13</sup> because if you live according to the flesh, you are going to die. But if by the Spirit you put to death the deeds of the body, you will live.

- Listen, let me give you one last warning on this because this is the last time Paul brings this up:
- Even if you are saved, sin is very much still alive in you. And you should never forget that. Because sin is a predator that it is always on the prowl to destroy you, and it's there no matter how far you've gone, how much you know or how much you have accomplished.
  - Paul Tripp on why Christian leaders fall: they forget the power of indwelling sin
  - No matter how far you've gone in the Christian life, until you go to be with Jesus, sin is still in there and it is looking for opportunity to destroy you.
- It's why John Owen says: "You must always be killing sin or it will be killing you."
- Most of us flirt with sin, trying to tame it rather than killing it
- But I told you that's as silly as those people who make a pets out of a predatory animals. People are always shocked when the animal snaps and hurts someone. One of our staff members showed me an article this week, from his hometown newspaper, with this headline: "Pet Bear Kills Pennsylvania Woman." Named Teddy. This woman had raised the black bear from cubhood. For 9 years, there were no incidents. But then, one day, the bear mauled her. Some of the neighbors acted surprised. One said, "She was a good person--we just thought she just had a strange hobby." I don't doubt she was a good person, but keeping a bear in your house is not just an unusual hobby, like scrapbooking or collecting stamps.

 I don't care if you name it Teddy. My kids are not coming over to hang out. We're doing play dates at my house. Because sooner or later, bears do what bears do, just like sin will do what sin does.<sup>2</sup>

You have to be killing it, or it will be killing you.

The point is, as a Christian, you always have to be fighting sin in the Spirit.

And make sure you note that Paul says it's only by the Spirit you can hope to do this: "...if by the Spirit you put to death the deeds of the body, (only then) you will live."

Matt Chandler: "Fighting sin without the spirit is like open-hand-slapping a bear--it isn't going to go well for you."

Many of you feel defeated by sin because you've been trying to fight the impulses of sin through the powers of the flesh. You have to fight in the power of the Spirit.

So, you ask, "How exactly do you fight sin in the Spirit rather than in the flesh?" (Star Wars scene with Luke using the Force?)

Let me give you a little 5-step process that fighting sin in the Spirit always entails:

- The first is Humble Confession. The opposite of this is hiding your faults or keeping them to yourself. That way you can maintain the illusion
  - But that is a mistake: there are certain things God can only heal when you bring them into the light, certain kinds of moral mildew on the soul that you can only get rid of by exposing it to the light of God's presence. The Bible says,

&lt;sup>2</sup> https://www.poconorecord.com/article/20091007/NEWS/910070340

"Confess your sins to one another and you will be healed." (James 5:16)

- BTW, this doesn't mean you tell EVERYONE everything, but you should tell SOMEONE. A trusted friend, a counselor, your small group.
- Total surrender This is in contrast to a negotiated settlement with God. This is what most people want: What do I have to do to be considered a 'good Christian'? But that won't work. He's not a force to employ; he's a person to surrender to. When you say no to him, even about a small thing, you cut yourself off from fellowship with him, and thus, his power as well.
- 3. Re-assurance in the gospel The Spirit breaks sin's hold on you by reminding you of your full acceptance with the Father.
  - I told you the irony of the Christian life is that the only ones who get better...
  - The power of new life flows only from assurance in the gospel.
  - This, we saw last week, is a little counter-intuitive, but it is always how Jesus changed people.
  - He told the woman caught in adultery: "Neither do I condemn you, go and sin no more." He put acceptance (neither do I condemn you) before change (go and sin no more) because only through knowing she was accepted would she have the power to change.
  - The Spirit assures you of your acceptance with God.
- 4. Memorizing specific Scripture: When Jesus fought Satan, he quoted specific Scripture that dealt with the temptation.
  - Paul calls the Word of God the "sword of the Spirit." (Eph 6:17). Scripture is your weapon for battle.
  - Trying to battle with sin without a thorough knowledge of Scripture is like going into a gunfight without a gun.
  - Not even Jesus would do that. If Jesus felt he needed to use Scripture to fight off temptations, so should you.
  - (Start with Romans 8)

- Listen, if this in here [this moment of preaching] is the only Scripture intake you're getting in the week, then you do not have what it takes to avoid temptation. Temptations to sin come daily; your intake of Scripture should be daily as well!
- Don't just avoid sin, pursue wisdom. Most Christians walk through life trying to see how close they can get to the line of sin without crossing it.
  - Walking with the Spirit looks different. If you are walking with the Spirit, that means you are always asking, "What do you want in this situation?" The question is not simply, "How close can I get to the line and not cross it?" but "What is the wisest thing to do?"
  - Paul says many things are lawful but they are not helpful (1 Cor 6:12). That means certain choices may not be sinful, per se, but they don't align you with the Spirit's will.
  - You get the power of the Spirit when you fellowship with the Spirit, and you fellowship with the Spirit when you seek to do what he wants in every situations.

So, those are 5 ways you can fight sin in the Spirit.

- Listen, the Spirit of God is not trying merely to curb your behavior; he is trying to change your heart.
- He's not just after obedience; he's after a whole new kind of obedience...
- To produce that, he doesn't just say "stop it" to you regarding certain sins. STOP IT!
- Rather, he spotlights the beauty of Christ and assures you through Scripture's promises that you are God's child. He calls to mind verses that you have memorized to fight the temptations and the onslaughts of the devil.
- And he changes you from within. You need him to overcome sin.
- So, that's the necessity of the Spirit. Next, Paul turns to:

II. The Trajectory of the Spirit

<sup>14</sup> For all those led by God's Spirit are God's sons.

- The question to ask: Led by God where? Is he talking about people who get messages from the Spirit spelled out in their Cheerios and Alphabet Soup each day?
  - Because you say, "I don't think that happens to me." How do I know I'm being led by God's Spirit?
  - I knew a guy who when he was preaching would stop and say, "Yes, God? OK, but if i say that people will get mad. Hold on, God, you're giving me too much at once..."
  - Is that what Paul is talking about to be led by God's Spirit?
- Many Christians interpret it that way.
- But look at the context. (That's always your rule in Bible interpretation).
- Wait... Yes, God? You want me to tell them what?
- When Paul says, "led by God's Spirit," he means led by the Spirit into Christlikeness. Into the works of life.
- If the Spirit is moving you that direction, you can have the assurance that you are God's sons.
  - Now, btw, ladies: don't feel left out here by the fact that Paul said "you are God's sons" and not "you are his sons and daughters."<sup>3</sup> He uses "sons" because in those days "sons" got all the inheritance. It's actually better for you to be put in this category of sons because you get to have all the same privileges as 1st century firstborn sons! You are a full heir of God's whole estate!<sup>4</sup>
  - Just like men are included when Paul calls the church the "bride of Christ", so daughters are included in the analogy of "sons."

If the Spirit is leading you toward Christlikeness, you have the assurance that you are God's sons.

- BTW, this is usually a gradual process--don't get discouraged if it seems to be happening more slowly than you want it to? Rarely does it happen in big, dramatic, ecstasy-filled moments. It's gradual, and slow.
  - It's like watching your children grow. If you look at it day by day, you see little change. It's only when you look over several years that you see the big changes.
- And, I'll tell you from personal experience, it's painful. God teaches you more through the pain, disappointment and humbling than he does through successes and seasons of bliss. Anybody here that can testify to that? I love those mountaintops...

So, it's gradual, painful, and slow: but make no mistake--if the Spirit is really in you, this is where he's taking you.

- The Spirit's one, indispensable goal for you is to make you just like Jesus. Just like him! To love what he loves, hate what he hates, seek what he seeks, and do what he does.
- And if he's really in you, he's always moving that direction.
- BTW, Is that what you signed up for when you became a Christian?
  - I ask because it seems like a lot of people are surprised, even scandalized, when I tell them that God's goal for them is to make them just like Jesus and he will be satisfied with nothing less.
  - They are like, "Well, I wanted God because I thought he could make me a better person. Add some stability to my family or fix my marriage. Get me a fire escape from hell.
  - But COMPLETE Christlikeness? Wholehearted devotion to God? This feels a little overboard.
  - I read a poem the other day I thought captured this perfectly:
     "I would like $3 of God, please. Not enough to explode my soul or disturb my sleep, but just enough of him to equal a cup of warm milk or a snooze in the sunshine. I don't want enough of him to make me love (my political enemies) or to (open my home to the) immigrant. I want ecstasy, not a transformation. I want the warmth of the womb, not a new birth. I want a pound of the eternal in a paper sack, please. I would like just $3 worth of God, please."<sup>5</sup>

- Paul would say, "Sorry, but we don't sell that here." And we don't either.
- The Spirit's goal is Christlikeness, he's satisfied with nothing less-and if he's moving you toward that, you can be assured that he's in you.

Which leads us to the last thing...

III. The Assurance from the Spirit

<sup>15</sup> For you did not receive a spirit of slavery to fall back into fear. Instead, you received the Spirit of adoption, by whom we cry out, "Abba, Father!"

- Now, 'Abba' here is not just the name of a hokey band from the 70's; it's the Aramaic word for father.
- Here's something interesting: Virtually every language has a short repetitive word like this for father. In English: Dadda. Spanish: Pappa. Indonesian: Bapa. Turkish: baba.
- Guess who comes up with these words? The toddlers do. Humans have a primordial desire to reach out for a parent--
- And what are we looking for? We are looking for someone who loves us perfectly and can take care of us.
- That's what our spirit is yearning for when we cry out 'Abba.'
- But here's what we find: Our earthly fathers, no matter how good they are, can't fully fulfill that.
  - Even good dads eventually let us down--if for no other reason that they can't be with us forever.
  - And so, we go through life looking for that fulfillment and security we first yearned for when we cried out "Dadda."

- We search for it in romance; in reputation; in financial security.
- Paul says, "God answers that yearning in Christ."
- And that releases us from the spirit of slavery and the accompanying spirit of fear
  - The spirit of slavery is where you think you identify something you need satisfaction, security and meaning from something, and you become a slave to that thing...
  - Accompanying that is always the spirit of fear—Have I done enough? What if I don't make it? Will I be ruined? Will I not be approved?
  - You become fearful of your circumstances. When bad things happen, you think, "Is life going to unravel? Am I going to be forsaken?"
  - You think, "This is just how life is for me. It never works out." You feel alone, fearful.
  - That's the spirit of slavery and fear we live under.
- The Spirit of adoption, by which we cry out "Abba father," releases us from both of those spirits.
- Because he assures us, through the promises of Scripture, that we are fully loved by our Father and and fully protected in him.
- We're not slaves who need to be afraid; we are sons who stand secure.
  - If you had the blessing of having a good father—don't you remember how you looked at him? How powerful he seemed? How safe you felt around him?
    - It seemed like my dad could fix anything with a pocket knife. Didn't matter what we were doing: hunting, or fishing, trying to remove a splinter, or working on the car, or trying to clear up the reception on the TV--out came that pocketknife and a few minutes later everything was fine. (Even today, when my iPhone starts acting up I'm tempted to hand it to him to see if he can fix it with that little knife.)

- And as a kid, I just felt safe if he was around, and I was terrified of the thought of him or my mom going away. My dad tells the story of taking me out camping one weekend when I was like 5 and he said I slept all night with my hand on his back. The next morning he asked why, and I told him I was afraid that I'd wake up in the middle of the night and he'd be gone and I'd be left alone in the woods.
- (My dad would want me to point out that he hadn't done anything that would justify that fear, it was just a son with a hyperactive imagination, but it was my greatest terror in life. Teddy the bear in PA? To be stuck somewhere scary without him.)
- Now, we're all grown up, but isn't that a picture of what we all still fear? To get left alone out in the wilderness of life?
- Paul says, "Good news. You don't have to be afraid.
  - You're a beloved son--and you can know he will never leave you or forsake you. DON'T EVEN HAVE TO...HAND
  - And you don't even have to keep your hand on God because he keeps a nail-scarred hand on you.
  - YOU SEE, In the Garden of Gethsemane, leading up to the cross, we are told that Jesus cried out, "Abba, Father," but was met with silence. He cried out Abba Father and was forsaken, so I could cry out "Abba, Father" with confidence.
  - He was forsaken so I could be forgiven. He was pushed away so I could have the assurance of always being drawn close.
- And that assurance changes my view of everything! I don't have to be afraid of bad circumstances. The overwhelming, never-ending reckless of God helps me. I have an always- watching, ever-tender and omnicompetent Father who promises to be with me through them all and direct them all according to good and his perfect plan.

- I no longer need the ASSURANCE of good circumstances to have joy and security. I have that in the 'Abba, Father' the Spirit helps me to pray in those moments.
- Listen, this is everything in Christianity. It reminds me of this quote I love by J.I. Packer: "If you want to judge how well a person understand Christianity, find out how much he makes of the thought of being God's child and having God as his father. If this is not the thought that prompts and controls his whole outlook on life, he does not understand Christianity very well."
- Even if you had a bad earthly father, you can know this. He's the Abba, Father your Spirit has always called out for.

<sup>16</sup> The Spirit himself testifies together with our spirit that we are God's children,

- So, how does he testify? Again, in context...
  - Through the evidence a changed life--you desire the fruits of the Spirit and closeness to God. You and others can see you changing
    - (And, btw, it is often through others that God reveals to you how your is changing. Often, usually, they can see it much better than you. One of the most memorable scenes for me from Pilgrim's Progress is where Christian emerges from the Interpreter's House)
  - Through the promises of the gospel. He whispers in your heart gospel promises--even when in everything in your heart doubts them!
    - Listen: Again, I'm not talking about a calm, serene feeling that comes into your heart out of nowhere and floods your heart with peace, love and groovy vibes;
    - I'm talking about just a faith resolve to believe the promises of the gospel even when your heart feels like it is in turmoil.
    - $\circ$   $\;$  He might be saying it to you right now:
      - In financial difficulty: You are my beloved son...

- In marital difficulty: There is no condemnation.
- Midst of an addiction: As far as the East is from the West
- Terminal illness: As high as the heavens are...
- Wandering child: Surely he has borne our grief
- Believe those things right now, and they are yours!

Vs. 17 might be the best part: <sup>17</sup> and if (we are really his) children, also heirs—heirs of God and coheirs with Christ—

- In adoption, all that belonged to the adoptive parents becomes the possession of the child who is adopted. The child even takes the parent's name.
  - I have a friend who adopted a couple of children from another country—he took on health risks. Legal trouble. Legal fees of nearly 200K.
  - This is what we get in Christ. Even after you rejected him, he voluntarily took on all of your problems and gave to you the full abundance of his treasure.

And even more: "co-heirs with Christ."

- This means what Christ has coming, you now have coming. Let that sink in for a minute. You are a co-heir with Christ. What's coming to him is now coming to you.
  - Serving as SBC President, I get to be around some interesting people, and I was at an event once where I met the son of a guy who was the grandson of America's wealthiest businessmen. I'll admit: I just wanted to be friends. Just so I could eat the crumbs that fell off his table. "We can't use our Super Bowl tickets this year. Want them? Here's a jet the family can't use anymore." But, he doesn't return my text
  - What if found out I'd be a co-heir with him?
  - In Christ, you get so much more!
    - Forget SB tickets, you're going to the marriage supper of the Lamb
    - Forget his jet, you'll fly with the angels

• Forget his mountain chalet, you've got a mansion prepared with streets of gold

—if indeed we suffer with him so that we may also be glorified with him.

- Paul indicates here where he is going next. The road ahead for Christians is one of suffering.
- Persecution. Unpopularity.

MUSIC

- We'll look at that in future weeks, but for now, it's good just to ponder this question: Is he worth it? If following Jesus leads you only to suffering in this life, is he worth it?
  - Years ago I read... "He who takes the son takes it all."
  - This is what Paul is saying. If you are willing to take hold of Jesus, with all the suffering and persecution and hostility and difficulty that goes with being a follower of Jesus, you will get all his glory!
  - Is he worth that? Yes. 1000x yes. He who takes the son takes it all!
- And, in the meantime, even while you are suffering, you get to suffer with him, in the presence of his Spirit.
  - Those who have walked with Jesus through the worst kinds of suffering have told me that one of the sweetest thoughts that sustains them in suffering is that they get to do it with Jesus.
  - They don't walk that road alone. He is with them every step of the way, walking by their side at all times, feeling every heartache and crying every tear.

He who takes the Son takes it all. You willing to forsake all and follow Jesus? To let his Spirit have his complete way in your life?

Have you ever given complete control to Jesus?

- That's what salvation is. Recognizing you can't save yourself but Jesus did it all and receiving him as Savior as a free gift.
- And surrendering full control of your life--for him to have his way in your life.
- Have you done that? Are you sure? Do you want to do that right now?
